A Community
Seed Network for Luxembourg
11 July 2026

Once again, the tomato - the most popular vegetable in the world - is leading the way. After decades of standardisation of our food, the thousands of different traditional varieties are being rediscovered. They tell a story of diversity, flavour and authenticity.

More and more amateur gardeners are saving their tomato seeds and sharing their treasure with one another. What at first glance seems a trivial hobby actually holds a deeper significance. Also carrots, cabbages, wheat, potatoes, apples and all the other cultivated plants that nourish us, display an amazing diversity of varieties. However, since the beginning of the 20th century, this diversity is disappearing at an ever-increasing rate.

A community seed network takes the pleasant hobby to the next level: Citizens get together and actively contribute to regional food diversity, autonomy and security.

The event brings together actors from Czech Republic, Belgium and Luxembourg within the framework of the Erasmus+ project 'Seeds of Growth' which aims to promote citizen initiatives for cultivated biodiversity.

The detailed programme and a link to register will be published on the SEED website in the coming weeks. Don't miss this unique event!
